was not straightforward, but I got it to work, now waiting for my cheque. I just used it as an example, I was expecting it to work off the bat, I really wanted my account to work off of the bat. Not bad 4 By Not4sc Not bad. After that I putted another hard drive and it worked so good! I cant manage to uninstall the old drive? No such luck 5 By rodger The original software bundled with my camera was not able to read the newly added memory card. I contacted support and was transferred to an agent that was equally clueless. After spending a considerable amount of time on the phone, I don't think I'm going to get any answers from them. Outstanding camera 5 By flmmyd I bought this camera to use with my iPhone 5s as a wireless accessory. It works as advertised, but comes with one disappointment. Q: Trouble with a mySQL query Im developing a web app using JSF, PrimeFaces and mySql. I have a drop down that I populate with the result of a mySql query when you select a country in it. My problem is that when I select a country where there is no record it creates a new row with no values in it. How can I do so the query returns me only the selected values?

If I use the IN query, I obtain a java.sql.SQLException: Operand should contain 1 column(s) at com.mysql.jdbc.SQLException.createSQLException(SQLException.java:1074) Which I dont know how to solve. This is my query: String query = "SELECT c.codigo, c.nombre, c.valor FROM productos c INNER JOIN categorias " + "b ON c.id = b.codigo_categorias WHERE b.nombre ='mexicano' ORDER BY c.valor "; ResultSet rs = stmt.executeQuery(query); rs.last(); if (rs.next()) { producto = rs.getString("codigo"); nombre = rs.getString("nombre"); valor = rs.getString("valor"); } I should point out that the query works well, I just want to do a second query to select the valor value so I do not have to do a view all instead of a view active Thank you A: You need to move your ORDER BY clause to the end of the query. Without the ORDER BY there is no way to know which record to take (especially if there are multiple records that have the same value). A: To avoid multiple records for the same country the request parameter country should be a unique identifier
