The group, called Chickenflu 2016, is protesting the growing anti-vaccine sentiment in the United States, with the protests set to go live on Periscope on Friday. Members of the group, which publishes a newsletter called Chickenflu Report, have been talking up the protest online for the past few days. The group is, however, not affiliated with the proper anti-vaccination movement, according to HuffPost Canada. There are currently dozens of anti-vaccination activists in the United States who have published a range of anti-vaccination videos online to fight for access to information and online stores that sell anti-vaccination materials.
